

I am Ye Wana Hlaing and from Myanmar. I am studying MBA in School of Management, AIT since August, 2013. I already finished two semesters course work study for MBA program. As there is three month holidays after April: summer break, I conducted an internship at Carlsberg Indochina Co., Ltd in Bangkok via AIT career center. As an internship in Carlsberg, I experienced differently other intern programs which are mostly archiving, filing and lighter tasks. I was assigned as leader in project that was studying free trade agreements in Asia region, especially focused on ASEAN and then impacts to Carlsberg supply chain process.

After three months, I could finish the project by delivering the hand book to all categories managers and local supply chain management teams for better sourcing manual and hand-on tools for import duty rate of major materials for Carlsberg.

In this project, I had to contact to intraorganizational colleagues and Asian regional governmental officers in order to implement project within specific timeframe. By leading this project, I experienced working procedures of smart professionals who are in real business world, the strategies to be continuous leading brand in market and organizational culture of multinational corporation (MNC) which I hadn't experienced before. I could also perform as a speaker in Asia Indirect Sourcing Conference which was held in Marriott hotel for two days. They hosted me not as intern student, as a member of their organization. Doing internship in Carlsberg make me confidence for my future career path and familiar with professional practices.
